Something Wicked This Way Comes. On Christmas Day I Heard the Bells Longfellow wrote the familiar lines in response to the horror of the bloody fratricidal conflict in general and to the personal tragedy of his son, Lieutenant Charles Appleton Longfellow, who was severely wounded in November Within the poem, however, he captures the years of despair from the horrors of the American Civil War and, beyond that, to a future that was filled with hope.

I thought how, as the day had come, The belfries of all Christendom Had rolled earlier, With the loss of his wife, only two and one half years earlier, and the tragedy abounding in his own country, on Christmas day, in he tried desperately to reflect on the joys of the season. On July 13, Henry married Frances.
