Niebuhr's analysis surprises many readers in one respect. He was distressed by the reports of Stalin's atrocities and by Stalin's nonaggression pact with Hitler, which made the world communist movement oppose a war to stop Hitler. After all, the Gospel that he preached proclaims love as the highest Christian value. And we are responsible for every choice we make. The best to hope for is to reduce these enough that society can survive. If Gandhi had read Niebuhr's book, he might well have objected that the author took a few passages from Gandhi's voluminous writing, tore them out of context, and misinterpreted their meaning.
