As for me, my foolish parents taught me letters. Our Caesar has a thousand cupbearers like you; and his palace, large as it is, scarcely holds the brilliant troop. I confess that it is so; while you, who write the grand wars of Priam in twelve books. This is the face that rules the world; these are the features of Jove in his calm majesty; such is the god when he hurls his thunder in a cloudless sky. All the perverts invite you to their tables, Phoebus. That modesty, which, before your reign, did not prevail even on the marriage couch, am not much concerned at his censure; for I should wish the dishes on my table to please guests rather than cooks. A name born among violets and the roses, a name which is that of the most pleasant part of the year; 1 a name which savors of Hybla and Attic flowers, and which exhales a perfume like that of the nest of the superb phoenix; a name sweeter than the nectar of the gods, and which the boy, beloved of Cybele, as well as he who mixes the cups for the Thunderer, would have preferred to his own; a name which, if even breathed in the Imperial palace, would be responded to by every Venus and Cupid; a name so noble, soft, and delicate, I wished to utter in not inelegant verse.
