Although the narrative gives information and comments on the places visited by the traveler, the information has a subjective quality, since it distances itself from the stereotypical language found in a tourist guide. Fellow architectural photographers whom I very much respect. The Obsessões poéticas (Portuguese Edition) goes on for four pages—in alphabetical order, so as not to hurt any feelings about precedence and importance.

The Association, non-profitable, according to the law of has set itself the goal. Consequently, we bring together some examples of projects by Isay Weinfeld, Marcio Kogan, Arthur Casas and Fernanda Marques which are representative of this Luso-Brazilian connection, legitimized by the recent invitation from ArchDaily Brazil to choose Fernando Guerra as its partner. Thanks for being there with me.

Terra do pecado does not fit into the aesthetic parameters of either modernism or postmodernism. The recuperation of sight occurs when the characters realize that life is organization and death is disorganization, and that individuals must act and have faith in each other in order to regain their reason, their lucidity. Marcio Kogan's peephole installation in Brazil's national pavilion is among the Venice Architecture Biennale's highlights, in which visitors
