Rob, Gabi, Adam and Vera just plan on going to hang out in the woods and make out a bit, but things spiral when the guys bring some alcohol to get the girls "warmed up", pressure to conform and be cool en 2. Rob seemed to be a bit of a doormat but towards the end he did grow a bit as he seemed to understand his part in the accident. But when Rob and Gabi skip school with two friends, the group makes a Deadly Drive (Surviving Southside) mistake.

Two couples in high school skip class and go drinking, the one that drives wrecked. But I hope to change that soon! It was hard to maintain interest in the beginning, and even with Deadly Drive (Surviving Southside) incident and the aftermath - while Rob does eventually grow and come to terms in some measures, it doesn't feel like there's a true resonance with respect to the event, the loss occurring, and the emotional gravity that one would feel if someone were in Rob's situation. This book might be used with high school, Too mature for elementary students as the teenage boy thinks a lot about having sex. I had high hopes for this one because I enjoyed Benito Runs by the same author, but to Read saving...
